

BIO: MICHELLE FOWLER

Michelle come to ACE, LLC SOLAR with an extensive background in management, particularly running crews in the construction sect. She has exceptional management, organizational, planning and people skills. She has worked as an Independent Contractor over the years: Residential and Commercial restoration, renovation and rebuild projects, historical preservation/restoration, structural, electrical, finishes, expansions and improvements. Over the years she has developed a reputation of thinking outside the box, offering clients' creative solutions for jobs others say cannot be done.

Michelle is a graduate of the Renewable Energy Program and Sustainable Construction and Design program at MMTC in Nashville, TN. She graduated with distinction on the Dean's List, and served as Student Class President and Secretary. She was instrumental in the completion of several high profile projects at the College; including a solar photovoltaic roof, a solar radiant heat system, weatherization initiatives, a horizontal wind turbine, and much, much more. She also took it upon herself to be involved in the LEED projects for Habitat for Humanity.

Michelle has herself started and assisted others to start/improve various community organizations, volunteering has always been important. She has started a Farmer and Artisan's Market, which provided local product, arts, crafts, and was a showcase for artists and musicians featuring live music and connected merchants directly to consumers boosting the local economy. The Market also offered educational classes free to the public to educate people on how to learn new skills/trades, particularly sustainable practices. She also developed the "Kids grow like Crab Grass" program, a Volunteer Community Garden and educational workshops focused on sustainability and energy efficiency. The program was specifically geared towards children to teach them the importance of fresh grown food and that it comes out the ground, not the grocery store.

Michelle and her family recently moved to Pulaski, TN and have enjoyed how welcoming everyone has been. Her family is heavily immersed in the Arts and music and have already been participating at the Starr Theater and the Pulaski Performing Arts Center.

ACE, LLC SOLAR proudly welcomes Michelle to our team.
