

BIO: DANNY LINDSEY

Danny Lindsey is a seasoned manager with a strong business background. He retired from the US Army Space and Missile Defense Command in 1992 as a Major. He spent an additional 20 years in the small business arena, as a business manager, consultant and team builder. Danny's formal training includes an MS in Logistics Management and he completed the Department of Defense Program Managers Course, with utilization as the PM of a multi-billion dollar government contract.

Danny is also a published author, and a regular contributor to the Sundial Writers Corner hosted by NPR radio station, WLRH. The combination of his knowledge of business metrics and his dedication to the growth of renewable energy brings new capabilities to the ACE LLC, SOLAR sales force.

Danny, his wife Wendy, and their two children live on a farm in Pulaski, Tennessee.
